

The Griffin Poetry Prize Anthology 2009: A Selection of the Shortlist

The Globe and Mail called the Griffin Poetry Prize a rich tribute to the form and an annual report on the state of the poetry nation. This years edition, featuring some of the finest work from the collections of extraordinary poets worldwide, reads like a whos who of contemporary poetry. Selections were chosen by noted poets Michael Redhill, Saskia Hamilton, and Dennis ODriscoll, and the result is a rich mosaic of a form that remains, in its relatively compact shape but often complex language, one of literatures most enduring gifts.

From the shortlist, the judges select the final winners in the International and Canadian categories. Shortlisted Canadian books are eligible for both prizes.
