

Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe

This fascinating collection of highly readable essays literally opens new vistas on the medieval landscape. Readers who imagine a primordial, unspoiled landscape will be surprised to discover that the medieval landscape was an artifact that medieval men and women managed, created, and imagined in creative ways over and over again.--John J. Contreni, Purdue University
A real contribution to what we know about the relations between nature and culture, intersecting in landscapes... . I know of no other single volume that offers such a wide array of approaches and perspectives on the topic. A pleasurable volume to read.--William H. TeBrake, University of Maine
Far from the forest primeval of popular imagination, the historians and literary scholars in this book describe a Western European landscape just as consciously constructed by its inhabitants as any modern landscape--physically, conceptually, and spiritually. All appearing for the first time in print, their essays provide a wealth of detail on this deep ecology of the Middle Ages and a better understanding of the creativity and skill of our cultural ancestors.

Contents
Introduction, by John Howe and Michael Wolfe
Part One: Managed Landscapes
1. The Medieval Countryside of England: Botany and Archaeology, by Oliver Rackham
2. Veneurs sen vont en Paradis: Medieval Hunting and the Natural Landscape, by John Cummins
3. New Habitats for the Rabbit in Northern Europe, 1300-1600, by Petra J.E.M. van Dam
4. Politics, Perception, and the Meaning of Landscape in Late Medieval Venice: Marco Cornaros 1442 Inspection of Firewood Supplies, by Karl Appuhn
Part Two: Created Landscapes
5. The Landscape of Anglo-Saxon England: Inherited, Invented, Imagined, by Nicholas Howe
6. Tribal Landscapes of Islamic Spain: History and Archaeology, by Thomas Glick
7. From

Alien Terrain to the Abode of Islam: Landscapes in the Conquest of al-Andalus, by Janina Safran<sup>8</sup>. Private Pleasures: Painted Gardens on the Manuscript Page, by Bridget Ann Henisch<sup>9</sup>. Part Three: Imagined Landscapes<sup>9</sup>. Landscape, Gender, and Ethnogenesis in Pre-Norman Invasion Ireland, by Lisa Bitel<sup>10</sup>. Narrative Time and Literary Landscapes in Middle English Poetry, by Laura L. Howes<sup>11</sup>. Creating Symbolic Landscapes: Medieval Development of Sacred Space, by John Howe. John Howe is professor of history at Texas Tech University. Michael Wolfe is professor of history and head of the Division of Arts and Humanities at Pennsylvania State University, Altoona College.

Inventing medieval landscapes: senses of place in western Europe Howe, John Wolfe, Michael [Publ.]. - Gainesville, Fla. (2002) Howe, John, Creating Symbolic Landscapes: Medieval Development of Sacred Space, Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe, (Leiden: Brill, 2010) John Howe and Michael Wolfe, eds., Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe (Gainesville: University Press of Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe Politics, Perception, and the Meaning of Landscape in Late Medieval Venice: Marco Inventing Medieval Landscapes has 0 ratings and 0 reviews. Far from the forest primeval of popular imagination, the historians and literary scholars in tHobsbawm, E. and T. Ranger, ed., The Invention of Tradition (Cambridge, 1983). in Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe, ed. John Howe and Michael Wolfe, Eds., Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe. Gainesville, Fla.: University Press of Florida, 2002. This fascinating collection of highly readable essays literally opens new vistas on the medieval landscape. Readers who imagine a primordial, unspoiled Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe Hardcover June 30, 2002. John Howe is professor of history at Texas Tech University. Michael Wolfe is professor of history and head of the Division of Arts and Humanities at Pennsylvania State University, Altoona Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe. Environmentalists and historians who think medieval Europe was a great wilderness, This fascinating collection of highly readable essays literally opens new vistas on the medieval landscape. Readers who imagine a primordial, unspoiled Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe [Hardback]. John Howe (Author) Michael Wolfe (Author) ?Share. ?61.95. Qty: Inventing medieval landscapes : senses of place in Western Europe / edited by John The Medieval Countryside of England: Botany and Archaeology / Oliver Way and Wayfarer: Travels in the Medieval World. Eds. Clive Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe. Eds. J. Howe & M. Wolfe Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western. Europe edited by John Howe and Michael Wolfe (review). Michael A. Falettra. Arthuriana, Volumewhich deals with the role and place of nature in human life, and, more recently Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe. Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe. Edited by John Howe and Michael Wolfe. Gainesville: University Locating Medieval Landscapes Clare A. Lees, Gillian R. Overing Imagined, in Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe, ed. Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe a Western European landscape just as consciously constructed by its Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Phce in Western Europe. Gainesville: University Press of Florida, 2002. Pp. ix, 237. isbn:

0-8130-2479-x. $59.95. The Hardcover of the Inventing Medieval Landscapes: Senses of Place in Western Europe by John Howe at Barnes & Noble. FREE Shipping